One of those solutions will be in place in just a few days. Starting this weekend, the Unemployment Office will now be open for calls on Saturdays. Also, the office will revamp its online system so it can take claims and questions. Leaders are installing more phone lines and asking for 70 more temporary employees. They're also planning to hire workers to man a cell phone bank to answer your questions about benefits. But the key, they say, is patience... Because of the economy and low demand, refineries have cutback on the amount of gasoline being refined. The lower supply results in higher wholesale prices. According to Triple A, national average for a gallon of unleaded is $1.93. In Nevada, it's $2.14.
